

KEEPING PETS FIT & HEALTHY

WITH PROPER NUTRITION @ FIELDSTONE

Any sudden change in your cat or dog's eating habits or a sudden increase or decrease in weight could be symptomatic of many underlying diseases. A good balance of carbohydrates, proteins, and fats is essential for maintaining your pet's overall health.

The nutritional needs of our animal family members vary depending on their age, weight, and activity level. At Fieldstone Veterinary Care, we are happy to answer your questions about the dietary needs of your canine and feline friends and regularly include nutritional counseling as part of our "Wellness & Annual Exams". Our team can recommend a diet that fits your companion nutritional needs or feel free to bring in the nutritional content of your existing diet for them to review during your wellness exam.

Pet obesity is also a growing problem that puts the health of your canine comrade or feline friend at risk. Obesity contributes to a host of pet health conditions including osteoarthritis, diabetes, high blood pressure, breathing problems, kidney and heart disease, and a life expectancy shortened by up to 20%. Keeping your pets active is an important part of your animals health!
