LVG Spotlight

Is there a silver lining to COVID-19?

With regard to adult education, there might be. The work of studying for a GED can continue, or working towards a GED can begin. LVG subscribes to an online learning program that helps adults get their GED. Someone can learn from home on this program and get encouragement and guidance through an LVG tutor by phone or Zoom. Check it out: <https://www.essentialed.com/products/ged-academy.php> There is no cost for this program to a learner that comes to LVG. If you know of anyone who has wanted to get their GED and never had the time or resources, please encourage them to call or email us. Now could be the time. We remain committed to equipping adults in our community through GED pursuit, job readiness, computer training, and helping adults improve their English language skills. Our office is temporarily closed but our work can continue through technology. We are remotely checking our phone calls and email. We're pleased to continue this work in a modified fashion. As usual, thank you for your loyalty and your contributions towards this work.
