COMMUNITY NEWS

Casino supporters bet on a path to expand gambling in Georgia

Supporters of expanded gambling in Georgia are betting that lawmakers could get the chance to vote to clear the way for casinos in Georgia as early as next year. They hope to borrow a strategy that helped break a years-long logjam over whether to allow stores to sell wine, beer and liquor on Sundays by giving local communities the final say. But MGM, which has pitched a $1 billion casino resort for downtown Atlanta, and other gambling proponents must clear a few additional hurdles as well. (Ga Trend)

Presence of telemedicine increasing access to care in new age

Access to health care has traditionally been a problem for rural areas where specialists, or even primary care doctors, are harder to find than in urban areas. Some living outside major cities may rarely see a doctor. To help close in the gap, there is a concept gaining ground in the health care industry that is meant to, in the long-run, reduce costs and provide more convenience and greater access — telemedicine. (Ga Trend)

Peachtree Corners company moving Harlem Globetrotters to metro Atlanta

A Peachtree Corners business is bringing the Harlem Globetrotters, and its entertaining brand of basketball, to a new home in metro Atlanta. Herschend Enterprises recently announced it will spend the next year moving the world famous team from Phoenix, Ariz. to the Atlanta area. The family entertainment company, whose corporate offices are located in Peachtree Corners' Technology Park, bought the team in October 2013. (Ga Trend)

U.S. News and World Report ranks Emory University Hospital No. 1 in Georgia

For the fourth year running, U.S. News and World Report ranked Emory University Hospital the No. 1 hospital in Georgia and in metro Atlanta. The hospital has 12 nationally ranked specialties and one high-performing specialty, according to the news magazine's 2015-2016 list of best hospitals.(Ga Trend)

The Mayor Of Columbus Makes Her Case For Fort Benning

Georgia will be one of the hardest hit states, as the Army looks to shrink its active duty force. 950 soldiers will leave Fort Stewart, while Fort Benning will lose 3,400. Deeper cuts could be in the works, if congressional Republicans and President Obama can't reach a deal to stop budget sequestration. (Ga Trend)

Deal: CSM Bakery Solutions to relocate to Sandy Springs

Staff reports that Gov. Nathan Deal announced today that CSM Bakery Solutions, a company with origins in the Netherlands, will relocate its global headquarters to Fulton County, creating 120 jobs and investing more than $5.5 million into Sandy Springs. CSM Bakery Solutions is an international leader in its industry, producing a broad range of bakery ingredients, products and services.(Ga Trend)

Lawmakers to study Georgia-Alabama cooperation

Georgia General Assembly has created a study committee to consider ways Georgia and Alabama can work with each other on areas of mutual interest. Sen. Chuck Hufstetler, R-Rome, who has been appointed to the 10-member panel, said all the appointees are from districts that abut the state line. (Ga Trend)

U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services ruled that effective on July 21 of this year, some candidates for naturalization will skip the services clause while taking the oath to become Americans.

So that means that in an age when people are streaming here to pretend to become Americans in order to commit acts of terror, now OR GOVERNMENT won't even ask them to voice the words that they will defend the USA.

New burn pit report: Lung disease, high blood pressure common in exposed vets

Troops who worked at burn pits in Iraq and Afghanistan, as well as those exposed to multiple dust storms during war-zone deployments, have higher rates of common respiratory illnesses like asthma and emphysema, as well as rare lung disorders, according to data drawn from the Veterans Affairs Airborne Hazards and Open Burn Pit Registry.

Service members who experienced frequent exposures to dust and burn pits also report increased health problems like insomnia and high blood pressure. But they don't appear to have higher rates of cancer when compared with troops who deployed but had little or no such exposure, according to a new Department of Veterans Affairs report.

The findings, in a report posted online by VA in June, are based on questionnaires completed by more than 28,000 veterans. The database allows any former service members who think they were exposed to fumes from burn pits or other sources of pollutants, such as sandstorms or dust, to register their health concerns with VA.

Nearly 46,000 veterans have opened accounts with the registry, with about 60 percent fully completing the questionnaire as of Dec. 31, 2014.

Of those who finished the lengthy questionnaire, 27,378 said they were exposed to burn pits, and 24,782 said they had dust storm exposure at some point during deployment.

High blood pressure was diagnosed in about one-third of personnel who reported burn-pit exposure and one-third who said they were exposed to dust storms.

Those in both the burn pit and the dust storm exposure groups also reported higher rates of insomnia, liver conditions, chronic multisymptom illnesses and decreased physical function, such as walking, running or climbing steps.

Significantly, 365 veterans said they've been diagnosed with either constrictive bronchiolitis or idiopathic pulmonary fibrosis — rare, crippling and often fatal diseases not usually found in young, relatively healthy populations like active-duty military personnel.

A number of former troops, including some who were exposed to a sulfur mine fire in Mosul, Iraq, in 2003, have been diagnosed with constrictive bronchiolitis, but that diagnosis has been controversial, largely because its confirmation involves an invasive lung biopsy procedure that military and VA physicians say is not necessary in the absence of notable symptoms or a known exposure to something like mine fire.

<https://veteran.mobilehealth.va.gov/AHBurnPitRegistry>

The registry is open to service members who served in the Iraq and Afghanistan wars, in Djibouti after Sept. 11, 2001, or in the 1991 Persian Gulf War.

The questionnaire takes about 40 minutes or longer to complete, VA says.

How to Cook Butterbeans

There are many vegetables that I love to eat, but which carry bad memories — memories of torture and mistreatment. Possibly even child abuse. Corn is one. We actually had to sit in the yard with buckets of corn and shuck it, pulling those green husks and long silks back until the sweet, yellow ear was revealed. And all the while, the hot sun beat down on us, causing sweat to run down our backs in rivers. Then there were peas and butterbeans. Have you ever visited a pea patch in Georgia in the summertime? Hot, sticky, dusty, maybe snakes underneath the rows and rows of bushes... definitely potential child abuse there. And then we had to shell them. Peas were easy enough, but butterbeans — ugh. Those flat beans were hard to shell and then just a few beans fell out.

It could take hours to get a good bowl full of butterbeans, much less enough to put up for the winter. But on a cold January day, when Mama placed a platter of fried chicken on the table along with a big bowl of hot butterbeans, well, there was no complaining then. Butterbeans are one of those distinctly Southern vegetables that seems to have different names and different varieties everywhere you go. Are they butterbeans or lima beans? The ones I grew up eating, known as butterbeans, grow up poles and are small and green. These beans are cooked fresh or frozen. Then there are dried butterbeans, which are larger and lighter in color, almost tan. These never appealed to me, but my family eats them year round.

I buy frozen butterbeans during the fall and winter months, but use fresh when they are in season during the summer. Here's my way of cooking butterbeans — which my husband declares is the best way he's ever had them. And no, of course he is not biased. Start by adding water, salt, pepper, bacon, butter, sugar and garlic powder to a large saucepan. Bring to a boil and boil for a minute or two until all the seasonings have dissolved. Add two pounds of butterbeans and return to a boil, then turn down to simmer. I like butterbeans to be very tender, so I cook them for about an hour. These are delicious with chicken, pot roast, meatloaf or even as a portion of a vegetable plate with sliced tomatoes and fried okra.

An engineer

An engineer dies and reports to hell. Pretty soon, the engineer gets dissatisfied with the level of comfort in hell, and starts designing and building improvements. After a while, they've got air conditioning and flush toilets and escalators, and the engineer is a pretty popular guy. One day God calls Satan up on the telephone and says, heh-heh, "So, how's it going down there in hell"? Satan replies, "Hey things are going great. We've got air conditioning and flush toilets and escalators, and there's no telling what this engineer is going to come up with next". God replies, "What??? You've got an engineer? That's a mistake - he should never have gotten down there; send him up here". Satan says, "No way. I like having an engineer on the staff, and I'm keeping him". God says, "Send him back up here, or I'll sue". Satan laughs, "Yeah, right, and just where are you going to get a lawyer"?

SEEDS FROM THE SOWER

Michael A. Guido, D.D.
Metter, Georgia

Life is unpredictable. Rarely does a day pass without someone or something interrupting our best laid plans.

We look forward to days without worry and nights that are peaceful. Then, suddenly and without our permission, we are jolted into the realm of the unknown and the unexpected. We strive to be safe and secure but we have no assurance that tragedy will not strike without warning.

Psalm 23 is no doubt the world's most loved Psalm. The helpless image of sheep who want to stray from the flock and their need for protection by an ever present and always watchful shepherd gives us comfort and calmness. We all need and want that kind of Shepherd. It gives hope and assurance that we will never be left alone during the dark hours of life and that we will never have to face dangerous valleys or dimly lit pathways by ourselves.

In this Psalm David presents a picture of God that reveals His love, His loyalty and His presence. As long as we live we can say He is "my" shepherd - not "a" shepherd or "someone else's" shepherd but "my" very own shepherd who watches over every step we take.

And finally, when we are face to face with the certainty of death after the uncertainties of life, we know that He is - not might be - but actually is with us as we "pass through" the dark valley of death and enter into eternity where we will enjoy His presence forever!

Prayer to HOLY SPIRIT

HOLY SPIRIT, you who make me see everything and show me the way to reach my ideal. You who give me the Divine gift to forgive and forget the wrong that has been done to me, and you who are in all instances of my life, with me, I, in this short dialogue want to thank you for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from you, no matter how great material desires may be. I want to be with you and my loved ones in your perpetual glory. Amen.

Say this three consecutive days, asking for your wish, After the third day, wish will be granted, no matter how difficult. Promise to publish this dialogue as soon as your wish is granted as mine was.

Thank you very much. G.S.

HICCUPS

A woman went to her doctor's office. She was seen by one of the new doctors, but after about 4 minutes in the examination room, she burst out screaming and ran down the hall. An older doctor stopped her and asked what the problem was, and she explained. He had her sit down and relax in another room.

The older doctor marched back to the first and demanded, "What's the matter with you? Mrs. Terry is 63 years old, she has four grown children and seven grandchildren, and you told her she was pregnant?"

The new doctor smiled smugly, as he continued to write on his clipboard, and quipped, "Cured her hiccups though, didn't it?"

WANTED: Vehicles for the RUN TIL IT SELLS

Peach French Toast

Ingredients:...

- 4 tablespoons unsalted butter
- 2 tablespoons light brown sugar
- 2 ripe yellow peaches, cut into 1/2-inch pieces
- 2 tablespoons plus 3/4 cup heavy cream
- 8 slices white or sourdough bread or brioche
- 3 large eggs
- 1/8 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- confectioners' sugar

Instructions:

1. In a large skillet, over medium-low heat, melt 2 tablespoons of the butter until it foams. Add the brown sugar and stir for 30 seconds. Add the peaches, raise heat to medium-high, and cook, stirring frequently, for 3 minutes. Stir in 2 tablespoons of the cream and simmer for 2 minutes. Transfer to a bowl.

2. Heat oven to 200° F. Place 4 slices of the bread on a cutting board. Divide the peach mixture evenly among the slices, leaving a 1/2-inch border on all sides. Top with another slice of bread and press gently.

3. In a shallow bowl, beat the eggs and cinnamon. Working in batches, soak the sandwiches in the egg mixture for 2 minutes per side.

4. Melt 1 tablespoon of the butter in a large skillet over medium heat. Fry 2 sandwiches until golden brown, 3 to 4 minutes per side. Transfer to a baking sheet and place in oven to keep warm. Repeat with the remaining butter and sandwiches.

5. Beat the remaining cream until soft peaks form. Halve each sandwich on the diagonal, sprinkle with the confectioners' sugar, and serve with the whipped cream.
