COMMUNITY NEWS

Southern Georgia Area Agency on Aging to Hold Public Hearings

WAYCROSS, Georgia: The Southern Georgia Area Agency on Aging will host Area Plan Public Hearings to collect the community's input about aging services and how best to meet the needs of the area's elderly population. Meetings will be held:

Atkinson County: Tuesday, January 12 at 10:00 a.m.
Willacoochee Senior Center
68 Boone Street
Willacoochee, GA 31650

Brooks County: Thursday, January 21 at 10:00 a.m.
Brooks County Senior Center
1301-A North Washington Street
Quitman, Georgia 31643

The public is encouraged to attend.

For assistance with issues related to older individuals, at-risk adults, people with disabilities, their families and caregivers, contact the Southern Georgia Area Agency on Aging (AAA) at 912-285-6097 (toll free 1-888-732-4464) or visit www.sgrc.us/aaa.html. The AAA is a division of the Southern Georgia Regional Commission.

Warm Winter Puts Georgia Peach and Nut Crops at Risk

Georgia's No. 1 agricultural crop is cotton, followed by timber, peanuts and blueberries. The official state fruit, the peach, is also a big money-maker. But an unusually warm winter is not ideal for many crops like peaches. Georgia peach growers say they're concerned about whether they'll have enough this spring. (Ga Trend)

Looking Forward To 2016: Georgia's Economy Trends

University of Georgia economists say Georgia's gross domestic product will grow at 3.5 percent, almost a full percentage higher than the nation's average. "So that means we're doing a lot better than the nation overall," she says. "But we're also going to see job growth slowing, but that's not necessarily a bad thing. We'll see more high-tech, high-skilled paying jobs and that's good for the Atlanta area." (Ga Trend)

Georgia medical marijuana sponsor to push expanded bill

The sponsor of this year's bill legalizing medical marijuana in Georgia will push to expand the law, despite opposition from Gov. Nathan Deal and a study commission created by the governor. State Rep. Allen Peake, R-Macon, said Tuesday he plans to pre-file legislation next week allowing marijuana to be grown in Georgia and used to produce cannabis oil for treating patients with seizure disorders and other diseases. The 2016 General Assembly session starts Jan. 11. (Ga Trend)

Democratic bill would require divorce judges to sign off on new gun purchases

A rookie Democrat in the state Senate says he's under "no false illusions," but he's moving forward with a bill that would require parties in the throes of divorce to get a judge's permission before newly purchasing a firearm. (Ga Trend)

2015 a year of unprecedented growth, Fort Gordon official says

This year will be remembered as Fort Gordon's "coming out party," Garrison Commander Col. Sam Anderson said. It was a year of unprecedented growth in both personnel and construction, he said. As expected, the installation swelled by roughly 1,000 service members as it continues to prepare for the arrival of Army Cyber Command, expected to relocate to the Augusta-area base by 2019. LEARNING WEBSITES

(Something to do other than social media sites)

Instructables

Instructables is a wonderful site you should definitely choose over social media, which teaches you to create things. It offers you fun videos and instructions to build just about everything that you can imagine, from a cardboard batman cowl to water balloon mortar. You can also share what you can make with other people.

Spreader

Reading quickly is an ability desired by many of us but also one which very few of us possess. Spreader is there to help us achieve exactly that. It is online speed-reading software that aims to help us improve our reading speed, and comprehension capabilities as well, and is completely free.

Brain Pickings

Brain Pickings is not just another productivity blog in the crowd out there, it's one of the most soulful and inspiring blogs on the web. It features thoughtful and analytical articles on topics related to literature, spirituality, creativity, and personal growth. Its focus is on things that truly help us grow and things that really matter, and the blog's not very hard to keep up with either, as it posts few but powerful articles.

Curious

Curious provides you with more than 17,000 lessons in almost any topic. As the site states, its mission is to help you learn something new every day and you can start it for free, but you have to pay certain amount to get unauthorized access. You can learn from the world's best teachers in topics spanning across humanities, STEM, music, relationships, and more.

Letters to the Troops

"Testaments In Glass, located at 305 E. Screven St, Quitman, is now a designated mail collection center for cards and letters to our troops in military service around the world.

Everyone is welcome to drop off all letters and cards to be mailed free of charge.

If you like, you may pick up cards at Testaments In Glass during their business hours.

If your group is 30 or more, cards can be delivered to you.

Guidelines for Letters To Troops:

- Keep letters upbeat and positive
 - Be thankful for their service
 - Share a little about yourself
 - Ask questions, however do not discuss death, killing or any sadness
 - Avoid politics and religion in excess
- It is all about appreciation and respect
Ask yourself, will this bring a smile to someone's face?
No envelopes or stamps needed

"All letters will be screened"

What to plant and harvest in the winter vegetable garden

You might be ready for a break from your flower beds once winter arrives, but why not grow some delicious edibles while the rest of your garden is snoring? It doesn't take much work or much space, it's a lot more interesting than pruning roses, and the rewards are great. Chances are pretty good that you have room in your garden to tuck in a few Swiss chard starts or leafy braising greens. These types of edibles remind us that in our gentle climate we can have beauty – and food – in our gardens year round.

There are plenty of edibles that you can plant in wintertime, including garlic, leeks, onions, radishes, lettuce, peas, potatoes, chard, spinach, rhubarb, and other leafy greens such as bok choy and kale. If you've already planted these yummy treats, then you can harvest them straight through winter. If you're looking do a little wintertime planting, here are some tips.

Garlic – Set out nursery-purchased bulbs (separated but unpeeled) four inches apart. Don't water them in. It's best to wait until shoots poke up before watering for the first time. Better yet, let the rain water them for you. Garlic takes up very little room and needs little attention.

Leeks – Nursery starts are inexpensive and plentiful. They can be harvested throughout the year and are unfazed by our mild winters.

Onions – This is where your well-amended soil is important. Onions love rich soil – not too sandy or clayey. And they like regular water. You can sow onion seeds, but it's easier to buy bulbs (called "sets") from a nursery or online source. Don't try to plant grocery store onions because it's unlikely to work. The best time to plant onion sets is January and February. (For green onions, or scallions, pull up the plants when they are about six weeks old.)

Radishes – Forget about those starchy red rocks called radishes at the grocery store. Search online to discover a long list of gorgeous radish seeds including French Breakfast, White Icicle and Pink Beauties. Easter Eggs is a particularly beautiful variety that produces radishes of varying purples, pinks and whites. Radishes grow easily and quickly, with some small-rooted varieties ready in a month or less from the day of seeding.

Lettuce – Like onions, lettuce appreciates fertile soil and regular water. Some are more suitable for warmer months, some for cooler. There are dozens of varieties, including heirloom and redleaf. Mesclun – a combination of several lettuces such as arugula, chervil, chicory and cress – grows beautifully in our climate. Sow seeds in January or February or check your local nursery for starts.

Peas – November and February are the best months to plant peas. Poke shelling or snap pea seeds an inch or two deep directly into rich soil and give them something tall to climb up and wind their tendrils around. Pea shoots are delicacies for birds, so you may need to cover your sprouts with a floating row cover or anything that keeps birds at bay but that lets sunshine and rain in.

Potatoes – Like peas, a good time to plant potatoes is in February, with the satisfying potato harvest around three months later. Potatoes are a joy to harvest for adults and kids alike. Depending on the variety, potatoes are usually grown from pieces of tubers that have at least one eye or from whole small tubers.

Swiss chard and other greens – Swiss chard is like an exclamation point in the winter vegetable garden, lighting up beds with bright pink, yellow and red stalks. It's one of the easiest greens to grow either from seed or from starts, and it grows all year. Other greens, such as spinach, kale and bok choy, are also easy. These greens can be used for salads or can be braised in stir-fries or thrown into soups. Most greens relish cool temperatures and go to seed in warm weather. Give them rich soil, keep them cool and you'll be rewarded with fresh salad greens throughout the year.

"At the next intersection make a complete 'u' turn and follow the direction to return to your original route," said a calm voice wanting to correct the driver who failed to follow the "commands" coming from his GPS. "Then, in five hundred feet, make a left turn and resume your route." It was not normal to listen to an unknown and unfamiliar voice to provide information that would direct a driver to a destination he had never seen before. Following directions from an unknown source is risky. Trust becomes a critical - if not the most critical - factor. How do we know if the person who is giving us advice is credible and trustworthy? Is that person looking out for our best interests or wanting to play a game with our life in the balance? No doubt all of us, at one time or another, have found ourselves on a route that was wrong - either by being careless or by making a mistake. David decided to follow a route that would take him in the wrong direction. He went against God's GPS. As a result, he ended up being guilty of a series of sins that came from giving in to a powerful temptation. It set in motion a chain reaction that follows the normal sequence of sin: first, he faced temptation; secondly, he refused to listen to the warning of the Holy Spirit; thirdly, he refused His route of escape; fourth, he committed the sin and then suffered the consequences of the sin on himself and others. What a tragic route he followed. But out of this tragedy there was his triumph. A "voice" said to him, "You have sinned!" When David heard God's voice, (His GPS), he admitted his sins and made a "u" turn. He asked God to forgive him and He did. "Have mercy on me," he cried, "and blot out my transgressions." If we, like David, listen to His voice and follow His "commands," He will lead us safely in paths of righteousness.

Let freedom ring.

In a letter to George Washington, Thomas Jefferson wrote: "No government ought to be without censors & where the press is free, no one ever will."

Your free community paper works hard each issue to provide you with great value. That value comes to you, our readers, at no cost. To some, freedom of the press means freedom from interference from others. We believe freedom of the press means that connection to our community should not cost the reader. You should not have to pay to be connected to or be a part of this region. That's why we're free.

Squirrel Problems at the Church

There were four churches and a synagogue in a small town: a Presbyterian church, a Baptist church, a Methodist church, a Roman Catholic church and a Jewish synagogue. Each church and the synagogue had a problem with squirrels.

The Presbyterians called a meeting to decide what to do about their squirrels. After much prayer and consideration they determined the squirrels were pre-destined to be there and they shouldn't interfere with God's divine will.

At the Baptist church, the squirrels had taken an interest in the baptistery. The deacons met and decided to put a water slide on the baptistery and let the squirrels drown themselves. The squirrels liked the slide, but, unfortunately, they knew instinctively how to swim, so twice as many squirrels showed up the following week.

The Methodists decided that they were not in a position to harm any of God's creatures. So, they humanely trapped their squirrels and set them free near the Baptist church. Two weeks later the squirrels were back when the Baptists took down the water slide.

But the Roman Catholics came up with a very creative strategy. They baptized all the squirrels and consecrated them as members of the church. Now they only see them on Christmas and Easter.

Not much was heard from the Jewish synagogue, however. They took one squirrel and circumcised him; they haven't seen another squirrel since...

Breakfast Casserole Recipe

By Diana Rattray
Southern Food Expert

Susan's breakfast casserole recipe is made with eggs, bacon or sausage, and cheese. Feel free to add some lightly sautéed onions and peppers to the egg mixture.

Ingredients

- 4 slices bread
- 12 to 16 ounces bacon or sausage, cooked and drained
- 2 cups shredded cheddar cheese
- 6 eggs, beaten
- 2 cups milk
- 1 teaspoon dry mustard

Prep Time: 15 minutes
Cook Time: 45 minutes
Total Time: 60 minutes
Yield: 4 to 6 Servings

Preparation

Grease the bottom of a 9"x13" pan. Tear up 4 slices of bread and place in the bottom of the pan. Sprinkle cooked crumbled bacon or sausage over bread pieces. Sprinkle cheddar cheese over the bacon or sausage.

Mix eggs, milk and mustard together; pour over casserole. Bake at 350° for 35 to 45 minutes.

Serves 4 to 6.

Note: This casserole can be prepared and refrigerated, unbaked, overnight. Just take it out of the refrigerator about 30 minutes before baking.
