HISTORY

RESTAURANTS JUST BEFORE WORLD WAR II

BY MICHAEL FLINN

As the decade of the 1940s began, Adel had many choices for dining. Burd Café, Woods Café, Wolter's Coffee Shop, Dick and Bob's, Howell's and Dox all competed with the well-established Mack's and Clancy's cafés. In addition, the new sale barn now featured a restaurant and, if you didn't mind a 5-mile drive to the north, the Shady Lawn, at the corner of 169 and 64, served an excellent chicken dinner.

Adel's oldest and busiest café, Mack's, was not immune to the current hard times. In March of 1940, the café was closed following actions by its creditors. It remained closed until late April when the McClearys were able to secure financing and reopen. The popular café had been in business for nearly 15 years by this time.

Clancy's, on Highway 6 at 14th Street, proudly offered those delicious Temptee steak sandwiches, either beef or pork. Clancy's was a popular place with the railroad crews whose trains often blocked 14th Street for an hour while they enjoyed their noon meal.

Doc Scott continued operating a restaurant in his medical building on Main Street (currently home of Fiesta). It was known as Dox Café back then but probably did not serve particularly healthy foods.

WHERE YOU LIVE HAS A LOT TO DO WITH HOW MANY MILES YOU DRIVE

Like most of you, I recently compiled information for my taxes. And, like most of you, I dread doing it.

As part of the process, I gathered documentation on the business miles I drove in the past year, as well as the personal miles. I seem to average about 14,400 miles total per year. That's a bit more than the average American, who drives 13,476 per year, according to lookupaplate.com. I use a vehicle quite extensively for work purposes, as I drive between our two offices frequently. But, apparently, others are driving nearly as much for a variety of reasons.

Although I put the pedal to the metal between our offices, my commute from home is quite short — less than 10 minutes. Meanwhile, the average driver is behind the wheel for up to 55 minutes per day. That's almost an hour. On the road. Every day. Add it up, and that's two weeks of drive time. Yikes.

Most of you would guess that men drive more than women. And, most of you would be correct.

How much more? According to the same data set, men drive an average of 6,000 more miles per year than women. Don't tell my wife, as I actually prefer to have her drive.

Do you ever wonder how many combined miles Americans drive each year? Inquiring minds want to know, and I found the answer — 3.26 trillion miles per year. Trillions sound like a lot, but 3.26 is only about 10% of our national debt, which also sounds like a lot. Meanwhile, the number of miles Americans drive is expected to increase by 22% by 2049. Let's hope our national debt doesn't do the same.

Apparently, where you live has a lot to do with how many miles you drive, and the answer may not be what you are thinking. The state with drivers who rack up the most miles? It's Wyoming, averaging 24,069 miles per driver each year. The question is, are Wyoming residents coming or going? My friend Alan always says, "Take your time going but hurry back." That must be Wyoming's state motto.

The state with the lowest average miles driven? Well, it's not really a state, but Washington, D.C. is the answer, averaging 7,013 miles per driver each year. They have nowhere to go, apparently.

Is age a factor? Absolutely. Those ages 35-54 drive more than any other age group, averaging 15,291 each year. Throw the male vs. female aspect in with age, and it gets even more interesting. Men ages 35-54 drive the most, while females ages 65 or older drive the least.

And 65-year-old women from Wyoming who are concerned about the national debt? You don't want to know.

Have a great week, and thanks for reading. ■

LOIS LAVONNE MARTIN

Lois LaVonne Martin, 95, died March 5, 2025. She was born in Monroe on March 19, 1929. She graduated from Runnells High School and attended Cedar Falls Teaching College. She enjoyed teaching kindergarten in Redfield and Pocahontas. While in Redfield, she met Roger Martin. They married on Aug. 21, 1949, had seven children and enjoyed 73 years of marriage.

The family farmed near Redfield. LaVonne was an active member of the Redfield Methodist Church and later the Adel Methodist Church. She taught Sunday school, was a 4-H leader, and was a member of the garden club, bridge club, Farm Bureau, neighborhood pitch club, square dancing group, and many more organizations and activities. She was instrumental in the opening of the Greater Des Moines Botanical Garden and the Reiman Gardens in Ames. She enjoyed taking groups of women on social outings which usually involved a stop at a tea room.

In 1963, they moved to a farm one mile west of Adel that Roger farmed and later purchased. In 1970, LaVonne and Roger built their dream home at Lake Panorama. They enjoyed being members of the HALO club and Par 3 golf course, where LaVonne shot a hole-in-one.

When the Iowa farm crisis hit in the 1980s, the dream home was sold and LaVonne worked as a nurse's aid, substitute teacher and at Panora greenhouse to help Roger keep the Adel farm. Later in their lives, they purchased the Martin family farm in Redfield where they lived for the remainder of their lives.

The family enjoyed traveling extensively. LaVonne liked entertaining and being surrounded by friends and family. She will be remembered for her quick wit, laughter and love for life and family.

LaVonne is survived by her children, Darwin Martin (Joyce), Natalie Pendroy (Jim), David Martin (Karen), Dallas Martin, Minalee Martin Scheuerman and Duane Martin (Lorie); 17 grandchildren; 34 great-grandchildren; and 16 great-great grandchildren.

LaVonne was preceded in death by her husband, Roger Martin; her son, Daniel Len Martin; her brothers, Dick, Ron and Orville Harmison; and her sister, Alice Pittman.

A visitation will be held at 10 a.m. on Saturday, April 26, at Adel United Methodist Church followed by a memorial service at 11 a.m. A private family inurnment will take place at Oakdale Cemetery in Adel. Online condolences may be sent to the family at www.caldwellparrish.com. ■

RECIPE

COOKING UP COMFORT WITH EASE AND CONVENIENCE

(Family Features) Checking all the boxes with family meals — convenience, nutrition and, of course, deliciousness — can be a tall task. If you're aiming to add recipes to your dinner rotation that are equally flavorful and easy to make, look no further than Fettuccine with Pesto, Prosciutto and Asparagus.

This two-pan meal serves four and provides a warm, comforting taste without making a mess of the kitchen. The classic combination of fettuccine and pesto are complemented by prosciutto and thick, flavorful asparagus for a recipe practically made for spring.

As an added (but important) bonus, it's easy to prepare — just don't overcook it. All it needs is 5-8 minutes in boiling water, or, in this case, 5-6 minutes in a heated skillet for perfectly cooked, firm and delicious spears. ■

FETTUCCINE WITH PESTO, PROSCIUTTO AND ASPARAGUS

Recipe courtesy of Michigan Asparagus
Serving: 4

Ingredients:

- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- ½ pound fresh Michigan Asparagus, trimmed and cut into bite-sized pieces
- 1 pound fettuccine pasta
- ½ cup basil pesto
- 6 slices prosciutto
- ¼ cup whole milk ricotta cheese
- fresh cracked black pepper, to taste

Directions:

- In medium skillet over medium heat, heat olive oil. Add asparagus and cook 5-6 minutes until tender.

- While asparagus is cooking, bring large pot of water to boil. Add pasta and cook according to package instructions. Drain and set aside.
- Add pesto to asparagus and add pasta. Toss pasta with pesto and asparagus.
- Divide between four plates. Top with prosciutto and 1 tablespoon ricotta per plate. Top with fresh cracked black pepper, to taste.

50s PLUS MEETINGS AND EVENTS

The 50s Plus Seniors group has been going for the last three years, during which time the group has played board games and enjoyed lots of conversations, plenty of coffee and a lot of good food. They invite anyone in Adel and the surrounding area to join them the first and third Tuesdays of the month, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Adel Public Library, 303 S. 10th St. If you have just moved to the area and would like to meet new people, this is a great way to do it. The group now has programs included in its activities. Programs are open to anyone, not just seniors. ■

RESTAURANTS, FROM FRONT

The Adel Café, on the east side of the square, came under new management when the business was purchased by Mrs. Charlotte Randal.

August was a good time for ice cream sales. Mack's Café offered a one cent sale on Meadow Gold ice cream. Buy one pint for 15 cents and the second one was only a penny.

July 1941 saw the beginning of drive-in service when Clancy's advertised "Drive in for drinks. Your order will be promptly served in your car."

An interesting incident occurred in October of 1941 when Mrs. Laura Howell suffered a severe attack of indigestion. By Sunday, she was much improved and able to return to work as a cook at Howell's Café. Where did she get the indigestion?

Also in October, Mack's Café began referring to its dance hall as a recreation room. There would be no more dancing...perhaps a reflection of the seriousness of the times.

Wolter's Coffee Shop, just across the street from the Rialto Theater, was a popular place for movie patrons. It was nearing 3 o'clock on a Sunday in December as the waitresses were cleaning up and preparing for the evening trade. Most of their dinner patrons were now at the Rialto enjoying the movie "A Yank in the R.A.F." starring Tyrone Power and Betty Grable. Suddenly, the radio broadcast was interrupted, and the restaurant grew quiet. Everyone listened in shock after the broadcaster announced, "The Japanese have bombed Pearl Harbor."

War would change Adel, and the world, in many ways. It hastened an end to The Great Depression but brought many new challenges. Food rationing helped cause an increase in restaurant patronage at a time when help was in short supply. Under great difficulty, the cafés of Adel somehow struggled through. ■
