WELCOME

A comprehensive resource designed for you!

Welcome to The Polk City Source, a unique annual guide for the residents of Polk City, provided by the publishers of your local North Polk Living magazine and the local businesses advertising their goods and services in these pages.

In this handy publication, you will find answers to the many questions you have as a resident in the community. More than just a standard directory, The Polk City Source is a comprehensive resource for those who wish to know about area recreational opportunities, who their city council or school board representative is, who to contact at various clubs and organizations, what churches are in town, or what local events are planned for the next year.

In addition, we provided local historical information on the city, as well as details on city parks, economic development and other various entities, complete with “numbers to know” should you need to reach out.

Most importantly, we hope you patronize the local businesses advertising their goods and services to you. They know you have lots of options to spend your dollars throughout the metro, but your loyalty to them is truly appreciated. We are a small business, too, and we value the relationships we have built with our advertisers and our readers. Our goal in publishing The Polk City Source is to help you enjoy living in Polk City even more than you already do.

If you like this guide, be sure to thank the local advertisers and tell them how much you appreciate the information and their support. If you would like additional copies of The Polk City Source, contact Shane Goodman at 515-953-4822 ext. 305, or email shane@dmcityview.com.

Of course, things can change a lot in a year's time, so be sure to contact the individual entities listed here for updates. We try our best to include as much information as possible, but if you notice any errors or omissions, contact the editor, Tammy Pearson, at 515-953-4822 ext. 302 or tammy@iowalivingmagazines.com.

Be sure to place this guide in a spot where you can easily find it and refer to it often. And then get out and enjoy everything that Polk City has to offer! ■

HISTORY OF POLK CITY

Polk City emerged as a predominantly rural community in the 19th century, enjoying slow, but steady growth throughout its history. Polk City has experienced considerable change during its 150-year history.

Native Americans first cut paths through the timber and prairie, followed by European settlers in the late 1840s. Several sources indicate that some of the first settlers used the remnants of an abandoned Native American village along present day Booth Street for their settlement.

The first Polk City area settler was George Beebe, who arrived in 1846. Beebe was instrumental in laying out the town, and he also donated land for a town square and mandated that the land be used as a park. The Town Square still remains the center of the community today. 1846 also marked the construction of the first water-powered mill that was built in the Big Creek area to grind livestock feed, wheat and corn.

In May 1850, Polk City was officially recorded as a town, and, five years later, the town outmatched Des Moines with a flour mill, five shoe shops, three general stores and five saloons. However, Des Moines — then known as Fort Des Moines — still managed to become the county seat of Polk County, and, in 1857, Polk City fell just short of becoming Iowa's new state capital to Des Moines.

In 1874, the Des Moines & Minneapolis

Big Creek Historical Museum

Railroad built a line between Ames and Des Moines through Polk City. Five years later, Polk City was nearly bypassed by the railroad in favor of straightening the route from Ames to Des Moines. In response to protest, a compromise was made and the "Polk City Junction" line was established and then incorporated in 1875.

A turning point in Polk City history came in the 1960s when planning began for the Saylorville Reservoir. The Army Corps of Engineers presented two alternative plans. The first option was to buy out and relocate Polk City residents in order to allow Saylorville Lake to encompass the area. The second, and chosen, option allowed for the preservation of Polk City by creating a second dam to form Big Creek Lake. This decision has resulted in a significant amount of development in Polk City since the 1960s. ■
