

Good afternoon and welcome to the 2022 ACP “Best of the Best” Annual Publication Awards presentation. Each year, the Association of Community Publishers recognizes the best work throughout the entire free publication industry. Today’s presentation celebrates the excellent, creative work in all disciplines of the publishing spectrum.

This year’s contest included over 1,000 entries in over 100 different publishing categories. The entries represent ACP publications from across North America and illustrate the depth, breadth, and amazing quality of our member publications.

The graphics and editorial judging was performed on March 30th by two teams of individuals in Nashville, TN. The teams represent a broad spectrum of publishing, graphics, printing and journalism backgrounds and experience from around the country.

Now, without further delay...we would like to present the 2022...

The Andrew E. Shapiro Cancer (AESC) Foundation was established in early 2006 to engage news media, including free papers and newspapers, and encourage publishers to join the fight against cancer. Newspapers play a vital role in their communities and can use their platform to raise awareness about various cancers while encouraging their readers to educate themselves about this deadly disease.

The AESC was established in honor of Andrew E. "Andy" Shapiro, Chairman of Metro Creative Graphics, Inc. Sadly, Andy, who spent more than 40 years working with publishers to help them build revenue, lost his two-year battle with non-smoking-related lung cancer in October 2005.

The Foundation's mission grew out of Andy's belief in the power of local publishers. With their unique position in local communities, publications can draw attention to the activities of both national and community-based cancer organizations, helping such groups develop a more cohesive and effective approach to educating readers about cancer and the various preventative measures they can employ to reduce their cancer risk.

In support of publishers who go above and beyond to fight cancer in their communities, the AESC Foundation sponsors awards to highlight those efforts and encourage fellow publishers to join in the fight against this deadly yet beatable disease.
