

Shareholder Update April 30, 2021

Dear Shareholders,

Thank you for taking time to be a part of our Company. We made progress this past week on our 2 key objectives of becoming fully reporting & launching our flagship website TheDirectory.com. Here is our weekly update & summary:

Reporting

We have not yet made a firm decision regarding whether we will seek to become an SEC exchange act reporting company or seek to become fully reporting with OTC Markets. Our preference is to become an SEC exchange act reporting company. We are waiting to hear back from our service providers regarding key information needed to make our final decision. We will announce our decision next week.

Corp Site (TheDirectory.net)

As you can see we have updated our corporate website to include an investor relations section. Until we become a fully reporting company we'll post current information there as it's gathered. This will help provide some level of transparency to our shareholders until we become fully reporting.

TheDirectory.com

We made progress this week with our development team and will now be launching a geo-targeted beta version of TheDirectory.com next week.

This will not be the fully functioning version but will allow us to begin operations, testing, data collection and monetization in key vertical market.

We are not changing the July 15th date at this point for the launch of the fully functioning site but will continue to evaluate the date after the beta launch next week.

Thank you again for your support as a shareholder of our company.
