Three Cool Ideas For A Better Night's Rest.

(NAPSI)—The next time you find yourself kicking your leg out of the side of your blankets to cool off or turning your pillow over because it's too hot—you won't be alone. Some 50 million Americans are affected by intermittent sleep problems, potentially created by bedding choices, according to the National Sleep Foundation—but you don't have to be.

Not many people realize it, but surrounding yourself with breathable fabrics while you sleep is essential for a restful night. Airflow matters because it lets heat naturally dissipate away from your body and helps keep your temperature regulated. Overheating can lead to a night of tossing and turning, leaving you groggy the next day because you didn't recover properly the night before.

What To Do

So what's the solution? It's possible to get more out of each day by enhancing your sleep environment. There are options that can cater to your individual sleep position, body frame and temperature to help you maximize recovery at night.

Consider these facts and tips for a better night's sleep:

1. There are 24 vertebrae in your back, eight of which are supported by a pillow and the rest by your mattress. Therefore, while you're sleeping, 30 percent of your comfort comes from your pillow and 70 percent comes from your mattress. This is why it's important to have the right fit of sleep equipment that supports your body's needs.

2. Get personalized. It's true that one size doesn't fit all—especially when it comes to your bedding. You might want to check out Bedgear, which offers a personalized Performance Sleep System and a Pillow ID fitting process, used by professional sports teams such as the Boston Celtics and Dallas Mavericks. The process is designed to fit people with individualized products for the best sleep every night.

3. Spend the last hour before bed away from electronics. Taking some time to relax and unwind calms your body and helps your brain transition more easily into deep sleep. At the same time, you're removing artificial sources of the blue light found in electronic devices that activates your brain to stay awake and can disrupt sleep.

Personalization, coupled with fabric technologies that are engineered to promote airflow and assist with temperature regulation, can ensure that your sleep environment is optimized for the best rest.

The Real World?

Sharing The Joy

Poetry By Cheryl Murph

In the real world,
a boy goes after the most popular,
and best looking girl in school.
In the right world,
a boy desires to know a good and respected
girl because they are few.
In the real world,
a girl goes for the most popular and best looking football player on the team.
In a right world,
a young girl knows she has been blessed with a man who is never unfaithful, never cruel or mean.
In the real world,
there is always complaining and worrying about age,
appearance and weight.
In a right world,
one knows God doesn't make junk, so on the inside and outside they know they're great.
In a real world,
everyone loves technology and each new invention
keeps society buying.
In a right world,
one expects less, invites a challenge and a desire
of self worth that requires trying.
In a real world,
bigger is better, so daddy makes a list for Santa
with lot's of wishes.
In a right world,
daddy makes a couple of sandwiches, grabs
two rod-n-reels and takes his boy fishing.
In a real world,
time is always found for the things we really want to do.
In a right world,
time is priceless when spending it with those forgotten,
by the ones they once knew.
In a real world,
wouldn't it be nice if we could actually live "In a right world" ?
I suppose we could.
If our most important priority was to forget the real world.

Remember til our paths cross again, Philipians 4:4-10
