Myths And Facts About Recycling Cartons

(NAPSI)—Recycling is one of the easiest ways the average person can help the environment. Not only does recycling prevent items from ending up in landfills, it reduces the amount of raw materials used to make new products. Here are some myths and facts about recycling commonly used food and beverage cartons:

Myth: Cartons can't be recycled.

Fact: Cartons are certainly recyclable. They can be turned into new products, such as paper towels, tissues and writing paper. They can also be turned into environmentally friendly building materials, in a process that uses no water or chemicals.

Myth: If a package doesn't have a recycling logo on it, it's not recyclable.

Fact: What can and can't be recycled varies by community and is primarily dependent on the recycling facility. Cartons can carry the standard "Please Recycle" logo under the Federal Trade Commission's green guidelines. It's best to contact your community or check its website to find out what can and can't be recycled.

Myth: You have to put your recyclables in a plastic bag and then in your recycling bin.

Fact: Plastic bags can jam up equipment at recycling centers, slowing everything down and potentially preventing recyclables from getting recycled. Instead, place materials loosely in recycling bins or carts.

Myth: You have to crush cartons and remove the caps and straws before recycling them.

Fact: Just empty any remaining product. No crushing is required, and the caps can be left on. You may want to stuff the straws back into the carton to make sure they don't become litter.

Myth: Cartons have a waxy coating and therefore can't be recycled.

Fact: Food and beverage cartons don't contain any wax. Cartons are Recycled food and beverage cartons can be turned into anything from paper towels to office paper to wallboard.

made mainly from paper with thin layers of plastic and, in some cases, aluminum.

Myth: Cartons have multiple layers that prevent them from being recycled.

Fact: The multiple layers in cartons are broken down during the recycling process. The paper is used to make new paper products and the aluminum or plastic can be used to generate energy or become binding. In some cases, the entire carton is used to make building materials.

Myth: Most places don't accept cartons for recycling.

Fact: Carton recycling is now available for 62 percent of U.S. households—more than 72.5 million homes—through curbside and drop-off programs. To find out where cartons are accepted, go to www.RecycleCartons.com.

HAPPY NEW YEAR

2019*A New Year 2019Sharing The JoyPoetry By Cheryl Murph*

As a New Year rolls around I can't help but think back about the past year and so many more that lie quietly in the back of my mind. No matter how much time passes my yesterday years are easy to find. Some still bring a smile to my face, some bring tears and of course there are some that I have tried for years to forget. But this year I see things differently, even my regrets. Are you thankful this year just knowing there is a God that forgives us for all the things we've done wrong? Do you see daily that every milestone in your life both good and bad, are exactly what he knew you needed to make you humble and strong? Without hardships he knew you would never offer a stranger a helping hand? Without pain he knew you would never be able to heal another's wounds? Without hurt he knew you could never be a true friend who really understands? Without tears he knew you would not appreciate the laughter that comes your way. Without Salvation he also knows where you will spend eternity if he comes for you today. So when looking back do you see your burdens were actually blessings God has given you year after year? Is your New Years Resolution for 2019, to love him more and wait on him to show you, why your still here?

Remember til our paths cross again, Philippians 4:4-10
