New Brain Health Initiative Could Unlock Mysteries Of Alzheimer's, Dementia

Scientists are seeking answers to important questions about how to preserve your mind over time.

(NAPSI)—Scientists are contemplating important questions about health, mind and age: Could your blood hold the molecular secrets to a fountain of youth, preventing age-related brain disorders? Are brain aging and Alzheimer's disease caused by a failure of interconnected systems, triggering a dominolike cascade of disease? Can targeting the red blood cells and blood vessels jointly keep your brain healthy and prevent dementia?

The Problem

As people live longer, Alzheimer's and other age-related dementias are on the rise, projected to reach more than 75 million people worldwide by 2030. To date, no effective therapy has been developed for these disorders, which are not only deadly but exact a high financial and emotional toll on society.

The Research

To find solutions, three large-scale research teams are exploring those questions as part of an initiative to merge research of the brain and the blood vessels to develop new understanding of—and, ultimately, better preventions and treatments for—age-related brain disorders such as Alzheimer's disease.

The Scientists

To help, American Heart Association, the world's leading voluntary organization focused on heart and brain health, and The Paul G. Allen Frontiers Group, a division of the Allen Institute, launched the $43 million research project to bridge the science of vascular and brain health through revolutionary, out-of-the-box thinking. Additional supporters include the Oskar Fischer Project and the Henrietta B. and Frederick H. Bugher Foundation.

The three teams, headquartered at the Salk Institute for Biological Studies in La Jolla, Calif.; Stanford University School of Medicine in Stanford, Calif.; and University Hospitals Cleveland Medical Center in Cleveland, OH, respectively, work to develop new solutions to the urgent problem of age-related cognitive decline. The researchers are:

- "Rusty" Gage, Ph.D., a neuroscience researcher and president of Salk, who will lead an eight-year project looking into new targets for therapeutic research and biomarkers of early-stage cognitive decline.

- Tony Wyss-Coray, Ph.D., a professor of neurology at Stanford, who will lead a four-year project studying how changes in the immune system affect cognitive health.

- Mukesh K. Jain, M.D., a cardiologist at University Hospitals Cleveland Medical Center and Professor of Medicine at Case Western Reserve University, who will lead a team of investigators on a four-year project investigating whether targeting red blood cells and blood vessels can prevent dementia.

The Hope

The research could yield transformational discoveries to better detect, treat and prevent cognitive decline.

Sharing The Joy

Poetry By Cheryl Murph

Wouldn't it be nice if God would answer our prayers right then and there. Especially during those times of trials when my faith grows weak and I wonder, is He really there? I can guarantee I ask him for something everyday. I know I ask that he put one hand on my shoulder and one on my mouth, when it comes to what I say. Some days I find myself wanting to make my own decision's about something when I know He is wanting me to wait. I seek, I ask but I don't always leave my unanswered prayer in God's hands before it's too late. He already knows what is best for me so why must I keep trying to fix things on my own? During my most darkest hours he has proven his love and not once left me alone. I can say there is nothing more greater than having Gods peace and allowing no one nor nothing to steal it away. Regardless of my imperfections and my faults Father thank you for accepting me and loving me today.

Remember til our paths cross again, Philippians 4:4-10 To read more of Cheryl's work find her on Facebook. If you would like to have Cheryl write a special poem for your loved one, contact her at lulumoon1961@yahoo.com

Revolutionary Same Day Tooth Replacement

We can give you the smile you deserve in one easy visit! Using a non-surgical mini dental implant technique (F.I.R.S.T.), it is now possible to permanently replace anything from a single tooth to a full mouth restoration. Your beautiful smile can be seen in 1 or 2 short visits with minimal discomfort, without destroying healthy tooth enamel and without the long healing time or high cost typically associated with conventional dental implants.
